Prasna Marga is a form of Vedic astrology used for determining the outcome of a specific question or event. It involves casting a chart based on the question and interpreting the positions of the planets and houses to provide guidance.

The process typically involves asking a clear question, casting the chart (usually for 8 or 12 hours), and then interpreting the results based on the planetary positions and the houses they occupy.

Prasna Marga is often used for various purposes, including:

1. Determining the outcome of a specific event or decision.

2. Understanding the timing of an event.

3. Identifying the causes of a problem.

Prasna Marga is a powerful tool for gaining insight into the future and making informed decisions.

1. Determine the question: The question should be clear and specific, focusing on a single issue.
2. Cast the chart: The chart is cast based on the question and the time of day.
3. Interpret the results: The positions of the planets and houses are analyzed to provide guidance.
4. Provide the answer: The final interpretation is provided to the querent.
